DETAILED ACTION

1. It is noted that this application is continuation in part of the application 10/398,460, filed 4/4/03, now patent 6,764,004.

Double Patenting

2. The nonstatutory double patenting rejection is based on a judicially created doctrine grounded in public policy (a policy reflected in the statute) so as to prevent the unjustified or improper timewise extension of the "right to exclude" granted by a patent and to prevent possible harassment by multiple assignees. See In re Goodman, 11 F.3d 1046, 29 USPQ2d 2010 (Fed. Cir. 1993); In re Longi, 759 F.2d 887, 225 USPQ 645 (Fed. Cir. 1985); In re Van Ornum, 686 F.2d 937, 214 USPQ 761 (CCPA 1982); In re Vogel, 422 F.2d 438, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970); and In re Thorington, 418 F.2d 528, 163 USPQ 644 (CCPA 1969).

A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 CFR 1.321(c) may be used to overcome an actual or provisional rejection based on a nonstatutory double patenting ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 CFR 1.130(b).

Effective January 1, 1994, a registered attorney or agent of record may sign a terminal disclaimer. A terminal disclaimer signed by the assignee must fully comply with 37 CFR 3.73(b).

3. Claim 1 is rejected under the judicially created doctrine of obviousness-type double patenting as being unpatentable over claims 1-8 of U.S. Patent No. 6,764,004 (hereinafter '004 Patent). Although the conflicting claims are not identical, they are not patentably distinct from each other because the instant claimed invention is somehow a broader recitation of the '004 Patent. For instance, in the present claim and the '004 Patent, the applicant claims:

- i)"A method of delivering goods between a consignor and a consignee in which
 - a) the consignor and consignee agree to the conditions of transport and storage of the consignment including the maintenance of the temperature of the consignment
 - b) the agreed conditions and consignment details are entered into a central database accessible by the consignor and consignee
 - c) at least one condition sensing data logger capable of sensing the agreed conditions

Art Unit: 2876

including temperature are attached to the consignment

d) the data logger is programmed to sense the conditions at agreed intervals and to store the readings or transmit the readings to said central database

e) the consignee upon receipt of the goods reviews the data logger memory or the transmitted readings and determines if the agreed conditions have been complied with

f) the consignee then enters into said database whether the conditions have been complied with or not.” Wherein in the ‘004 Patent the applicant claims:

ii)”A logistics chain management system for use by members who include goods suppliers, transport providers, storage providers, and customers wherein the members agree to comply with predetermined logistic conditions for the goods which system includes:

- a) a communication network accessible by members;
- b) data storage means accessible over the network for storing details of a consignment of goods;
- c) means in said communication network for making available to appropriate members details of said consignment;
- d) means for members to communicate with each other over the network;
- e) means to collect data corresponding to the predetermined condition of the goods during transportation and storage;
- f) means to record and track data pertaining to said consignment as the consignment moves along the supply chain to the consignment eventual destination including the current location of the goods and compliance with the predetermined conditions; and
- g) means to generate reports from the data collected, wherein one of the predetermined conditions is the maintenance of the temperature of the goods within a predetermined range and the means for tracking the data incorporates a temperature sensor and data logger that periodically senses the temperature of the goods and stores the data or transmits the data to said network accessible storage means.

The instant claim encompasses the claimed invention of '004 Patent.

Thus, in respect to above discussions, it would have been obvious to an artisan at the time the invention was made to use the teaching of claims 1-8 of '004 Patent as a general teaching for delivering the goods, to perform the same function as claimed in the present invention. The instant claim obviously encompasses the claimed invention of the '004 Patent and differ only in terminology. The extent that the instant claims are broaden and therefore generic to claimed invention of '004 patent [species], In re Goodman 29 USPQ 2d 2010 CAFC 1993, states that a generic claim cannot be issued without a terminal disclaimer, if a species claim has been previously been claimed in a co-pending application.

The obviousness-type double patenting rejection is a judicially established doctrine based upon public policy and is primarily intended to prevent prolongation of the patent term by prohibiting claims in a second patent not patentably distinct from the claims in a first patent. IN re Vogel, 164 USPQ 619 (CCPA 1970). A timely filed terminal disclaimer in compliance with 37 C.F.R. & 1.321(b) would overcome an actual or provisional rejection on this ground provided the conflicting application or patent is shown to be commonly owned with this application. See 37 C.F.R. & 1.78(d).

Allowable Subject Matter

4. Claim 1 would be allowable upon filing of a terminal disclaimer.

Art Unit: 2876

5. The following is a statement of reasons for the indication of allowable subject matter: Although the prior art of record teaches an Internet based logistics chain management system which includes a communication network, accessible data storage, tracking components for tracking the consignment, etc., the prior art of record fails to disclose or fairly suggests all the specific details of the tracking information including tracking if a predetermined condition of the consignment is met at a current location, a data logger to sense the conditions at agreed intervals to transmit the sensed conditions to the central database, etc. These limitations in conjunction with other limitations in the claims were not shown by, would not have been obvious over, nor would have been fairly suggested by the prior art of record.

Conclusion

6. The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Fanagan, US Patent No. 6,945,459. Stephenson et al, US Patent No. 6,094,642. Garwood, US Pub. 2003/0185937.
